WAY TO GET STARTED: GET AN EXISTING STRATEGY EXECUTION READY

Execution Day

Strategy rarely fails on the page. It fails in the operating model.

THE JOB TO BE DONE

Find what will stop your strategy being executed, before it does.

WHO IT IS FOR

A leadership team that has a strategy but cannot yet execute it. These are teams that have rolled out strategy after strategy, only to find it does not land.

Together we find where the friction sits and build a game plan to overcome it. We set up channels so the team learns quickly what is working and what is not. Then we make the small adjustments that keep the strategy on track.

HOW IT WORKS

A target operating model describes the ideal state. This extends it by looking at what can go wrong. We examine:

- The current operating environment.
- Internal communications.
- The current PMO workload, or any large ongoing project where resources are already committed.
- How budget cycles affect your ability to launch and resource new activity focused on strategy execution.

The aim is to expose execution weaknesses in the operating model.

HOW THE STANDARD VERSION RUNS

BEFORE · HALF A DAY	THE DAY · ONE DAY WITH YOUR LEADERSHIP TEAM			AFTER · HALF A DAY
I prepare so we start from your situation, not a template.	1 Find where the friction sits	2 Build a game plan to overcome it	3 Agree channels that show what works	Follow-up to make the small adjustments that keep the strategy on track.

TWO VERSIONS

Standard version

For a full leadership team.

Two days of my time: half a day preparing, one day with your leadership team, half a day following up.

Your commitment: one day with the leadership team.

£3,000

plus VAT. Two days at £1,500 a day.

Small-team version

The same job, for a smaller team.

One day of my time: a quarter of a day preparing, a half-day session with your team, a quarter of a day following up.

It works from what your team tells me in the room. It is not a review of documents or workload data.

Your commitment: a half-day session with the team.

£1,500

plus VAT. One day at £1,500 a day.

Both versions are a way into the full Future programme. Day rate: £1,500 per day plus VAT. Travel and accommodation charged at cost.
